

WHERE THE RIVERS RAN RED

The Indian Fights of George Armstrong Custer

There are a myriad of volumes on the life of George Custer, his amazing Civil War battles, and his demise along the banks of the Little Bighorn River, better known as "Custer's Last Stand." There are also individual books on his three previous Indian fights, but no author has ever compiled a detailed look at all four of his Indian fights in one volume in a comprehensive manner. Author, Michael Donahue has filled this niche with a holistic perspective of the first three fights and how they determined Custer's actions at the Battle of the Little Bighorn. Using field research, along with unpublished archeological evidence and eyewitness testimony, Donahue analyzes all of Custer's Indian fights that occurred near waterways . . . where the rivers ran red.

Cover: Artist Michael Donahue's Custer's Last Stand-Where in the hell is Benteen? limited edition prints available at michaeldonahueart.com

Collector's Edition. Casebound with color dustcover. 8-1/2" x 11". 400 pgs. Illustrated, indexed. ISBN: 978-0-9979337-8-9
Published by San Juan Publishing. Expected release date May, 2018. Presales - inquire: editor@sanjuanpublishing.com.

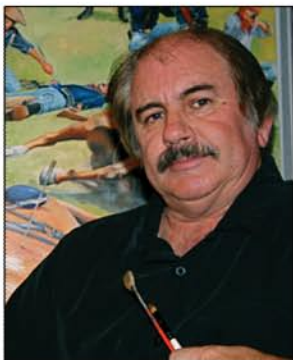

Reviews:

"Michael Donahue digs deeper than anyone before him in uncovering the truth behind Custer's fatal decisions at Little Bighorn."

Steve Adelson, Author Little Bighorn: Voices from a Distant Wind
Producer, Contested Ground-The Battle of the Little Bighorn
Available from www.sanjuanpublishing.com

Another title by Michael Donahue, Drawing Battle Lines: The Map Testimony of Custer's Last Fight. Winner of the G. Joseph Sills Jr. Book Award for best book of the year by the Custer Battlefield Historical & Museum Association and winner of the John M. Carroll Award for best book of the year by the Little Bighorn Associates.

Available from www.uptonbooks.com

Michael N. Donahue

Michael Donahue is chairman of the art department at Temple College, in Temple, Texas. In 1993, he was awarded the title of Piper Professor for being one of the top ten professors from all Texas universities and colleges. He has published many articles on the Battle of the Little Bighorn, and in his book, Drawing Battle Lines—The Map Testimony of Custer's Last Fight, has won numerous awards. He has worked as a park ranger at Little Bighorn Battlefield National Monument for over two decades and has researched the battle for over four decades. Donahue is also a nationally recognized artist with over 50 exhibitions to his credit.